6.13 REMOTE CALL FORWARDING SERVICE (RCF)

6.13.1 General

- a) Remote Call Forwarding Service (RCF) is a service whereby a call placed from a station (the originating station) to an RCF subscriber's telephone number in an exchange (the call forwarding location) is automatically forwarded by Company facilities to another station (the terminating station) designated by the RCF subscriber, which is located in a different exchange or to a station in another wire center in the same exchange. (C)
- b) The feature of Remote Call Forwarding will only be available in those Central Offices equipped to provide such services, and is offered to both business and residence customers. Central Offices will be equipped for RCF at the discretion of the company. (C)
- c) Remote Call Forwarding is not offered where the terminating station is a coin telephone or where Call Forwarding is a feature at the RCT terminating location.
- d) RCF is subject to transmission limitations, so that the quality of transmission of calls which are forwarded may vary depending on the distance and the routing necessary to complete each call and normal transmission is not guaranteed on any forwarded call. This service is not represented as being suitable for the transmission of data or for connection to other services beyond the premises of the terminating primary station.
- e) This service is provided on the condition that the RCF customer subscribe to sufficient access lines at the terminating location to adequately handle calls from the RCF location without interfering with or impairing any services offered by the Company. If, in the opinion of the Company, additional RCF lines at the call forwarding location or access lines at the terminating location are needed, the customer shall be notified and requested to correct the facility deficiency. Should the facility requirement not be corrected within 10 days the RCF service shall be subject to disconnection.
